

The Federation of International Employers (FedEE)

Adam House, 7-10 Adam St, London, WC2N 6AA United Kingdom. <http://www.fedee.com>

Unsolicited Quotes From FedEE Clients

"I find the regular news letters to be of great value. I just want to enquire as to whether I can share this around some of my colleagues."

Senior HR Business Partner

"Our team relies on the information from your newsletters and it would be a real blow if they were withdrawn."

HR Manager, American computer technology corporation.

"Thursday was a very good event – well organised, well attended and well received."

Senior Partner with a leading Irish law firm

FEDEE SERVICES

Daily updates to our online legal database, hour-by-hour production of news items and travel warnings - plus an authoritative fortnightly newswire.

One call to the legal helpline for access to immediate guidance and support for over 70 countries worldwide.

Online training videos covering key jurisdictions. Opportunity to obtain a Foundation Certificate in Employment Law (in the pipeline).

One inclusive annual fee for up to 15 users in a company.

FedEE not only provides legal data – but also pay, labour relations and general HR information.

Although now independent, FedEE was founded with assistance from the European Commission and is controlled by a main board of seasoned HR professionals. It is currently chaired by the Ford Motor company and has Fellows drawn from many of the largest multinationals in the world.

COMPETITORS

Periodic updates with little or no daily news or travel warnings.

Either no legal helpline, limited country coverage or referral to a colleague in the particular jurisdiction.

Promotional videos – but few directed towards continual professional development. Where opportunities for certification exist they are for an added fee.

Multiple payments and more limited user access.

Only legal data, without associated practical HR support.

Our few direct competitors are commercial law firms, publishers or consulting organizations. They do not have constant internal inputs from leading HR practitioners or the spirit of mutual self-help fostered by FedEE.